About Fish Rocks

Fish Rocks is a small reef area approximately 2 Kms offshore from C.Y.O'connor beach. It is marked by two Cardinal navigation markers, one Northern & one Western. It is situated on Success Bank and is approximately 4 Kms south of the Fremantle port and the Swan River Estuary & 3 Kms North of the Port Coogee Marina. Its maximum depth is approximately 4M, making it vulnerable to seasonal storms. Other recent pressures may have been put on the site by the opening of the Port Coogee Marina in 2007, and the dredging of Fremantle Harbour in 2010. We also had marine heatwaves in 2010 and 2011.

C.Y.O'connor beach is historically renowned for being an industrial zone. Robb Jetty and the Abattoirs & the Power Station being the most notable establishments. Robb Jetty was dismantled in the 1960's, while the Power Station was decommissioned in 1985, and the Abattoirs in 1994.

The Fish Rocks survey started as a Marine Community Monitoring Project (MCMO) initiated by the Natural Heritage Trust (NHT) and what was then called the Department of Conservation, and Land Management (CALM). It was conducted by the Friends of South Beach community group and Murdoch University Diver's Club (MUD). After several initial surveys, the project lost momentum and the MUD club vowed to continue the surveys single-handedly as a community service. To this date they have fulfilled their vow.

The first survey was conducted in December 2002, with the intention of completing surveys every six months afterwards. So far the commitment has been more-or-less delivered. The survey is concentrated towards fish species and abundance, although some other observations have been made, all be it in less detail. So far close to 100 species of fish have been recorded as well as dolphins and a sealion. Numerous tropical fish species have been recorded including the Longfin Bannerfish (Heniochus acuminatus), the Narrow-banded Sergeant Major (Abudefduf bengalensis), and the Chinaman Rock Cod (Epinephelides rivulatus).

Survey data can be viewed by selecting the sheet titled by the date of the survey, starting at Dec.02. The sheet labelled 'Total' lists the grand total of all species recorded at the sight over the entire period of surveys.
